Mrs. Johnson, of Louisville, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Nettie, will arrive Saturday evening to make an extended visit to her sister, Mrs. Wm. Burdett. Miss Johnson was a visitor in our city last summer and her return will be hailed with delight by a large circle of acquaintances.

The W. O. C. T. U., of Highland county, will hold their semi-annual convention in Hillsboro on the 23d of November, 1886. As next Monday will be the last meeting for business before the county convention it is very necessary that those interested in temperance work should be there to assist in any or all work they can find to do. Come Monday, at 3 o'clock.

A recent dispatch from Wabash, Ind., to the Detroit Journal, says: "Miss Alice Hall, of La Grange township, pretty, accomplished and determined, fell in love with Philip Fawley, of Hillsboro, O., an industrious, good-looking and well-to-do young man. Fawley, however, objected to a Republican for a son-in-law, and so the couple had to elope to Niles, Michigan, to get married. This they did on Friday, and when Hall shut the door in their face, they took the train for Ohio, where Fawley will vote to-morrow." Another Republican victory.

Mrs. W. H. Gregg gave another one of her delightful evening companies at her home on last Friday evening. About fifty invited guests assembled between the hours of eight and nine o'clock, and were cordially welcomed by the Mesdames Gregg and Mrs. W. H. Gregg, and their charming sister, Miss Jennie Harris, in whose honor the company was given. Mr. Gregg was unfortunately and unexpectedly detained from home. A novel feature of the evening was the presence of gentlemen, whom it has become "quite the style" of late to ignore on such occasions. Elegant refreshments were tastefully served in the parlors about ten o'clock. The evening passed most pleasantly and all too quickly, and everyone expressed themselves as having passed a "most delightful evening."

Last Monday afternoon about 3 o'clock Jesse Hewarden, a colored man, who, for the past fifteen years has been living at Mrs. Ellen Price's, died of what is supposed to be Bright's disease. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Clinton at the Wesleyan Methodist Church, assisted by Rev. French, of the A. M. E. Church.

The new drop curtain on the Armory stage is the work of Mr. A. Mahler, of Cincinnati, and it speaks well for his ability as an artist. It is a Swiss scene, with a lake in the foreground, beyond which is a chateau upon the brow of a tree-capped, rugged cliff, while the snowy Alps set off the background. Mr. Mahler being a native of the land of Tell, knew what he was painting.

The Dragoons deserve encouragement for having transformed the old, abominable Music Hall into a place of beauty. Their enterprise is highly commendable, and the News-Herald sincerely hopes that their efforts will be appreciated by our citizens. They have expended nearly $600 in getting the place in order, and with its frescoed walls and fine new drop curtain the new armory is a place to be proud of.

On Wednesday evening of last week Mrs. George Zink was prostrated by a stroke of paralysis. She was stricken while out in the yard alone, and was not discovered until her continued absence caused a search to be made. She was found lying on the ground unable to speak or move. She was removed to the house and Dr. Patterson summoned, who pronounced it paralysis of the nerves of motion of the right side. Mrs. Zink is now rapidly recovering, being able to walk about the house, and will soon be restored to her usual health.

Speaking of the Martha Wren Comedy Company, which plays at the new Armory next week under the management of the Scott Dragons, Monday's Cincinnati Enquirer says: "Boulevard's pretty Irish play, 'The Colleen Bawn,' was presented at Haylin's Theatre yesterday afternoon and evening before large audiences. The leading characters were assumed by Mr. James Collins and Miss Martha Wren, in whose appearance no little interest has been manifested by their many friends in this city. Miss Wren, who, in private life, is Mrs. James Collins, played 'Ellie O'Connor' charmingly, and her singing, as usual, captured her auditors. She has selected a role well adapted to her abilities. Mr. Collins played well the part of 'Miles McCoppalen,' and his songs were many times encored. The other characters were satisfactorily assumed. The scene where 'Daddy Mann' attempts the life of 'Ellie' was particularly meritorious. It was pointed out by Mr. Collins. The play will be carried on the road with the company. Mr. Collins' bright young son made a happy hit in a small part. He is a chip from the old block."

Greenfield Lecture Course.

Owing to the enterprise of Mr. W. B. Adams and Dr. Ed. Waddell Greenfield is to be visited this winter by five talented lecturers—Maj. H. C. Dane, Rev. A. A. Willis, General Lewis Wallace, Hon. Wm. Parsons and Dr. J. H. Hedley. This is a step in the right direction and one that should meet the approval and secure the aid of every good thinking citizen of Greenfield and vicinity as these lectures cost the management from $75 to $150.00 each. The season tickets for five lectures will be $2; general admission not less than 50 cents. The present arrangement is to have one lecture a month.

Attention, Ladies.

Call at Miss Emma Cox & Sister's and look at their choice stock of millinery, just received.

Notice.

The patrons of Drs. Chaney and DeHass are respectfully requested to call and settle their account on or before December 25th, 1886. nov11w3.

Rev. Geo. H. Fullerton, D. D.

The following is from the Ohio correspondence in the St. Louis Evangelist. Dr. Geo. H. Fullerton is a brother of our townsman, Dr. H. S. Fullerton, and has many friends in this vicinity who will regret to learn of his continued ill health.

Rev. Geo. H. Fullerton, D. D. pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of St. Louis, Mo., has been laid up for some time in his resignation as pastor, owing to ill health. The congregation kindly granted him a vacation of six or seven months, and he came back apparently much benefited, and preached three weeks and then he was convinced that his health and future usefulness demanded longer rest and entire freedom from pastoral responsibility. We never knew a more devoted pastor or a more devoted people to a pastor. The severing of the tie so tender, and yet so strong, will be with no ordinary feelings of grief to his health and future usefulness. What action the congregation will take is not known.

Incendiary.

Last Thursday evening about eight o'clock, the large barn on the farm of John L. West, living about four miles from this city on the Samantha pike, was burned to the ground. It is supposed to be the work of an incendiary, as earlier in the evening a tramp had called at the house and asked for his supper which was refused him. He left in a bad humor and shortly afterward the flames were discovered. At the time of the discovery the flames had made such progress that it was impossible to save the barn. It required the strenuous efforts of the neighbors to save the dwelling as it was only a short distance from the barn and there was a strong wind blowing the flames directly towards it.

There were about thirty-five tons of hay burned besides a large quantity of wheat and other grain. The building was insured in the Insurance company of North America, represented by James Reece, of this city, for $400, which will cover about one-fourth of the loss.

The tramp who is supposed to have done the nefarious work, has not been seen or heard of since the fire.

A Highlander Murdered.

SALINA, Kas., November 4.—Adam Head was shot by Wat Chilson last night in a political quarrel. Both were prominent farmers and politicians. Head was a relative of Governor Foraker, of Ohio. Commercial Gazette.

Adam Head, the victim in the above lamentable affair was a brother of W. H. Head, of this city. The shooting occurred on the night of November 3d, about 11 o'clock, on Mr. Head's farm, about eleven miles from Salina, Kas. No one witnessed the scene except the assassin, Wat Chilson, who says that it was done in a political quarrel. Chilson, whose arm was broken in the affray, gave him self up the next day.

Adam Head was a native of Highland county. He was born on a farm about twelve miles east of Hillsboro where he lived until the breaking out of the late war when he enlisted as a private in the Union army. He served with honor through the whole war and was for many months a prisoner at Libby. Since the war he lived in Brown county until about fourteen years ago when he moved to Kansas, where he has since resided.

He was a well-to-do farmer and took a prominent part in the politics of his county. His remains were interred at Salina, on Saturday, November 6th, by the G. A. R.

The English Literature Society met last Monday evening at the home of Miss Maria Stuart. The meeting was called to order about 8 o'clock by the president, Dr. McSurely. There was a full attendance and the names of five new members were added to the enrollment.

The society is rapidly increasing in size and interest and promises to afford its members many pleasant, profitable evenings during the coming winter. The literature of England, from the sixth to the nineteenth centuries was included in last Monday's lesson and interesting papers were read by Miss Lizzie Kirby on the Relation and Coexistence of Music and Poetry, and by Mrs. John McNeil and Mrs. Lavenia Dill on the Literary Character and Works of Caedmon and Alfred the Great, respectively. Will McSurely also favored the society with some selections from Caedmon's Paraphrase, in the original Anglo-Saxon and translations of the same. Miss Kittie Oldaker was expected to read an essay on Michael Angelo and his Painting. The Last Judgment, but could not be present. Her paper will be read at the next meeting which will be held at the residence of Dr. W. R. Smith on Monday evening, November 23d.

The members wish it understood that the doors of the society are open to all who care to pursue a course in English Literature in a pleasant, practical manner. No invitation or election is required. A desire to enter into admission and a hearty welcome by the present members.
